

Re: Specimen ID

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.techniques.microscopy/2005-05/msg00062.html>

- From: Aaron <nghy@xxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: 5 May 2005 14:04:02 -0500
-

Hi Gary,

You may want to discuss this matter with these people.

<http://www.botany.utoronto.ca/ResearchLabs/MallochLab/Malloch/Moulds/Moulds.html>

Regards,
Aaron

On Mon, 02 May 2005 16:03:31 -0700, Gary G <see.signature@bottom> wrote:

>I found an usual clump in an outside corner of a door and figured that >it was another wasp nest. Nope. It was fiber-like and very black >inside, of powder consistency. I figure that it is a fungus. The >"spores" look like pollen but differ in the protrusions that one would >see on white blood cells. The following are links to images of this >stuff. Anyone have a clue to what this is?

>

><http://www.microtechnics.com/fungi-1kx-1ann.jpg>

>

>

><http://www.microtechnics.com/fungi-10kx-1ann.jpg>

>

>Gary Gaugler, Ph.D.

>Microtechnics, Inc.

>Granite Bay, CA 95746

>916.791.8191

>gary@microtechnics dot com

.

- Follow-Ups:
 - ◆ Re: Specimen ID
 - ◇ From: Gary G

- References:

- ◆ Specimen ID

- ◇ From: Gary G

- Prev by Date: Re: Kohler illumination question...
- Next by Date: The Microscope vintage book 1919
- Previous by thread: Re: Specimen ID
- Next by thread: Re: Specimen ID
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread